The idea of a now page came from Derek Sivers. A page I stumbled on while trying to see which webring were still active. These aren't exactly goals, but a collection of experiences I would like to complete.

I am fine delaying and rolling over to the next quarter if I don't have enough time to complete it. Either I am well enough to continue working on the tasks, too busy trying to keep myself afloat, or dead with the tasks being no longer my problem.

2024-FALL

The focus of this season is introspection, a backlog that I've neglected and previous goals which were not completed. Recently, I've been made aware of some negative traits of mine.

2024-SUMMER

I'm still working on last season's goals and want to focus on repairing, low-tech, and continued sustainability tasks this season.

2024-SPRING

This spring is a busy time. I am trying to re-orient myself to handle the rest of the year. The quarter started strong, then was blown off track by the stings of boredom and burnout.

Hello, dear readers! I wanted to take a moment to update you on my latest blog post titled "Exploring the Wonders of the Night Sky. I will be publishing this post on December 15, 2024, and it covers various aspects of stargazing, astrophotography techniques, and tips for enjoying the beauty of the night sky.

My name is Yitbarek Alemu, and I am a software engineering student at Addis Ababa University.

I was born and raised in Hossana, a city in the southern region of Ethiopia.

Hossana is known for its landscape and incredible weather.

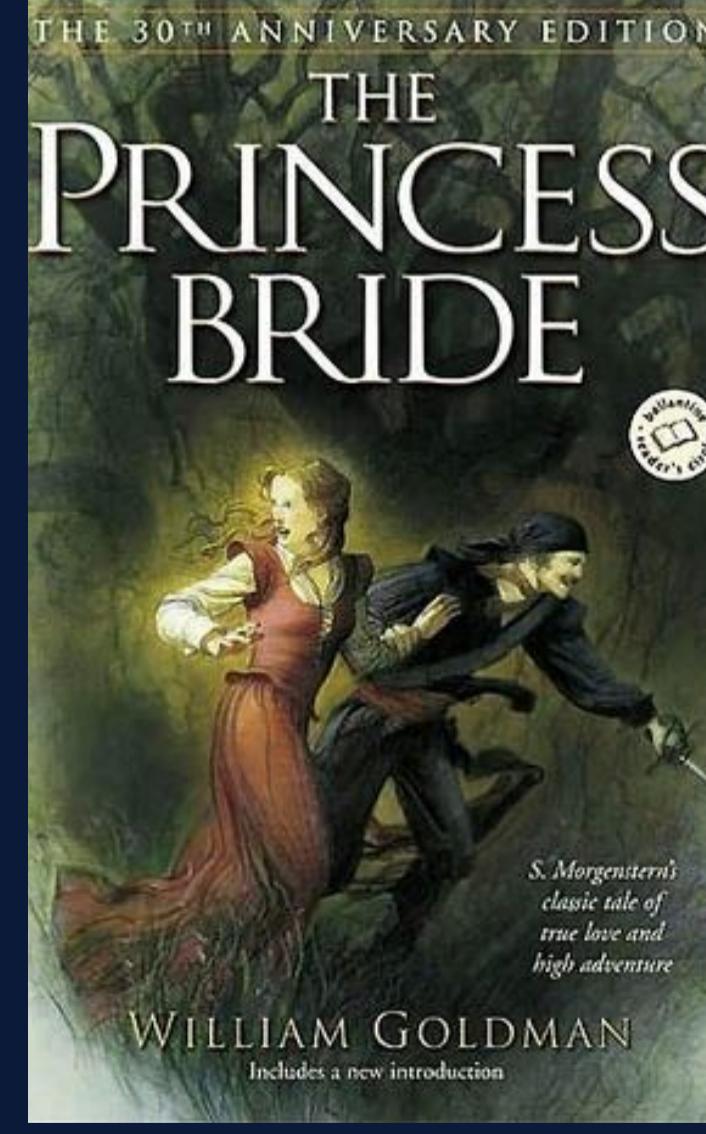

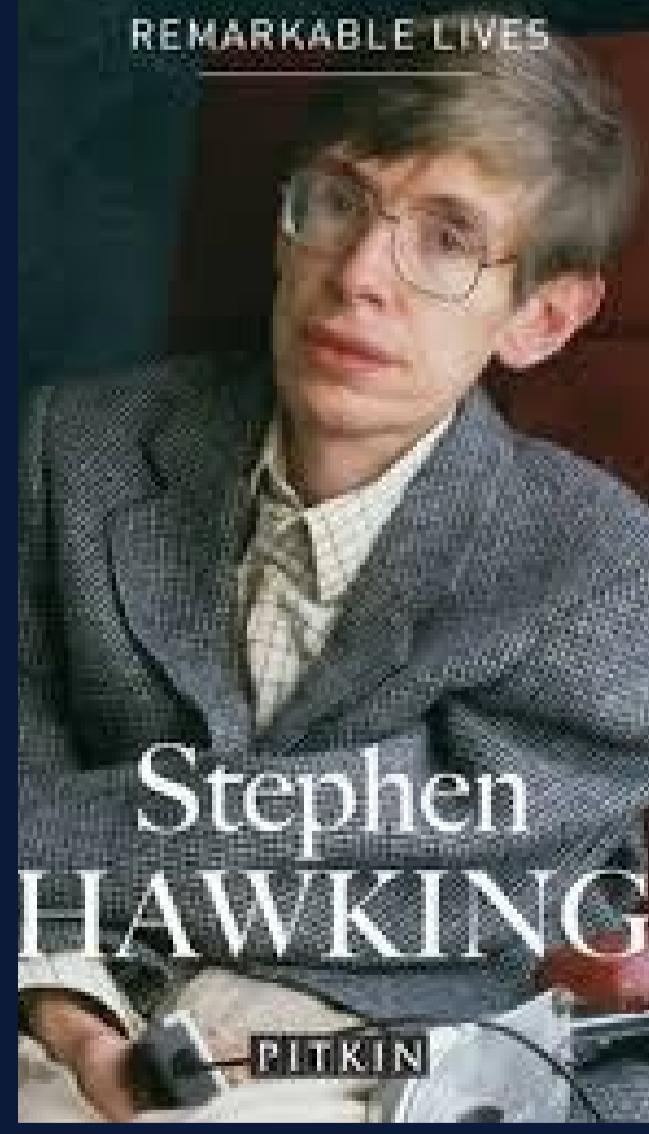

Education

I completed all my pre-university years at Holy Trinity Primary and Secondary School, an exceptional institution known for its vibrant community. This school emphasized personal growth, instilling confidence and a sense of purpose in its students. Its nurturing environment encouraged creativity, critical thinking, and resilience, providing a foundation not just for academics but for life skills. Through dedicated teachers, diverse extracurricula activities, and a supportive peer network, Holy Trinity became more than just a school—it was a transformative chapter in my journey to becoming my best self.

Hobbies

Mostly, I read to explore diverse worlds and ideas, gaining new perspectives and insights. My reading habits vary widely—from immersing myself in fiction that expands my imagination to diving into non-fiction that enriches my understanding of history, science, and human behavior. Books are my constant companions, offering both an escape and a means of growth. They challenge me to think critically, spark creativity, and connect with experiences beyond my own. Reading, for me, is both a passion and a tool for lifelong learning.
